

MRS. PARKER ON STAND TELLS OF THE SCYTHIAN

Woman Skipper Makes Flat Denial of Charge Yacht Was Stripped.

RUGS LEFT ON BOARD.

Family Plate Taken Away and Was Not Included in the Inventory.

Mrs. Charles T. Parker, who was formerly Miss Susan DeForest Day, went on the witness stand to-day in the United States Court, and told Judge Wheeler and a jury her side of the story of the burning of her yacht, the Scythian.

She is being sued by the London and Liverpool and Globe Insurance Company for $7,000 as a rebate from the $21,000 the company paid her after the yacht was destroyed. Suit is based on the charge that the fine furnishings of the yacht had been removed just before the fire, and should not have been included in the inventory. To support this charge, they put on the witness stand Capt. Cardiff, who swore that he had set fire to the yacht at the request of Dr. Parker, and on the agreement that he was to receive $10,000. Other persons on the yacht, formerly employed by the Parkers, testified that the hangings, pictures, monogram linen and silverware had been removed.

These charges are denied by the Parkers, who declare that this is a "spite" suit brought to discredit one institution by Mrs. Parker to recover several hundreds of thousands of dollars that she placed in the hands of brokers and which she charges was misused.

Mrs. Parker Takes Stand.

When Mrs. Parker went on the stand she was questioned by her attorney, Mr. MacFarlane.

Q. Mrs. Parker, are you defendant in this action and owner of the Scythian? A. Yes. I bought the boat in 1895.

Q. You are a daughter of Henry Day? A. Yes.

Q. Are your parents dead? A. Yes.

Q. Opposing counsel objected, but questions were allowed, because Mr. MacFarlane said they were important. He went on then to try to show that the furniture aboard the Scythian had been her mother's in the Morristown, N. J., house and the town house.

Q. What was the Scythian? A. She was in the North Sea fish trade. Then she was a frigate.

Q. You fitted her up to meet your requirements? A. Yes.

Q. Why did you buy her? A. On my physician's advice.

Q. How much time did you spend on the yacht? A. Ten months in the year.

Q. When did you marry Dr. Parker? A. In 1900.

Photographs were shown to the woman skipper of the interior of the yacht. She pointed out the rug in one room as one she never had changed.

Most of Furnishings Left.

Q. Now, when the yacht went to Erie basin what did you order taken from the boat? A. I ordered a desk, two tables and some other little things sent to my rooms at the Plaza.

Q. The great mass of furnishings was left there? A. Yes. The boat could go into commission at any time.

Q. Do you know about the things that Capt. Cardiff says were removed at Whitehouse? A. No.

Q. What did you do with the rug? A. I suppose they were sent to the cleaners.

Q. Was that the custom? A. Yes, and then brought back in the spring.

Q. Did you put your silver in the inventory? A. No. I knew the family plate was not aboard. It was taken off.

Q. When the yacht came back from the West India cruise did you order anything removed from the yacht? A. No.

Q. Why did you have so much linen? A. I needed it for my guests.

Q. After the fire did you prepare a list of things on board? A. I did.

Mrs. Parker was not nervous. She appeared more like a person having a heart-to-heart talk with a jury instead of appearing as a witness.

Q. How did you get at the price of the items in the inventory? A. I went to shops and priced duplicates.

Mrs. Parker declared that all of the articles in the list were on board the yacht when it was burned excepting one table that should have been left out of the inventory.

Q. Did you find that you still had some of the things that were supposed to have been destroyed in the fire? A. Yes. There were six or seven pictures—water colors and etchings—a Japanese vase, a table with a monogram on it.

Q. Where were these? A. In the dining-room.

Mrs. Parker said she found things afterward in her town house that she thought were on board at the time of the fire.

Q. Were there some articles on the boat that you failed to include in your list? A. Yes, quite a number.

LET OFF ON THE PLEA OF THE MAN HE SHOT.

Marlow Told the Court Samuels Was Only Fooling When Pistol Went Off.

"Your Honor, he was only fooling when he shot me. He was trying to make me give him a cigarette. We're old pals."

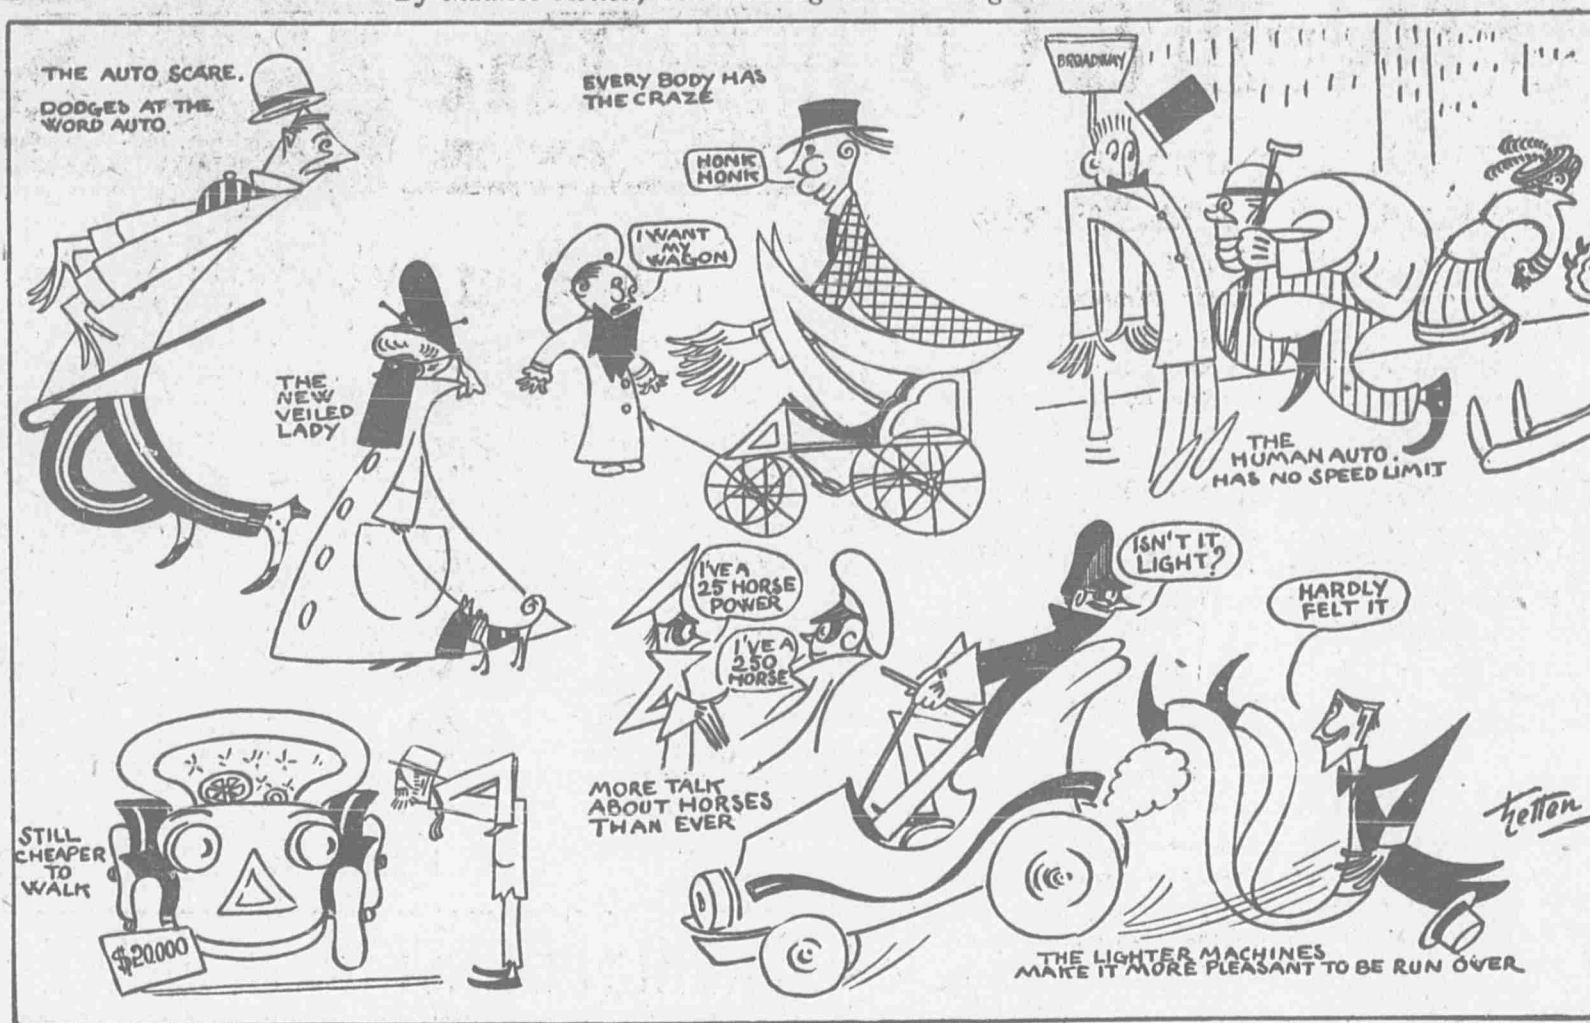

This was the plea of Alfred Marlow, a plumber, who was shot in the chest by Frank Samuels, a special policeman. Samuels was arraigned in the Yorkville Court to-day on a charge of felonious assault and Marlow was anxious to have him freed. The shooting occurred in Marlow's shop at No. 4 Second street.

According to the story of both men, Samuels asked Marlow for a cigarette and when the plumber jokingly refused to give him one, he pulled out a revolver, in snatching it about it went off, sending a bullet skimming across Marlow's cheek, cutting the skin.

Detective Barnes was passing and heard the shot. He rushed in to find one man with the revolver and the other with the wound. He deduced felonious assault, and despite Marlow's protestation arrested Samuels. After Magistrate Breen had heard the story he discharged Samuels.

FIGHT BEGUN FOR KEMP'S MILLIONS

Disinherited Nephew Sues to Break Will Disposing of $5,000,000.

The fight of the disinherited nephew, Thomas J. Kemp Foster, to break the will of Edward Kemp, of Lanman & Kemp, wholesale druggists, and thus get a share in the estate of $5,000,000 or more left by the famous citizen-reformer, was resumed in the Supreme Court before Justice Greenbaum and a jury to-day.

Foster was an employee of Lanman Kemp in his younger days. He is now fifty-four years old and a wealthy operator in real estate. He, his two brothers and a sister bitterly contested Edward Kemp's will in the Surrogate's Court four years ago, but were unsuccessful.

Edward Kemp was a brother of George Kemp, whose will was also hotly contested, and his widow and her two children and Arthur Kemp are among the defendants in to-day's action.

The will under contest provided that after the death of the widow $100,000 each was to be paid to George William and Edward Kemp, Jr. The $100,000 held in trust for Mr. Kemp's sister, Eliza Caldwell, and his niece, Mrs. C. F. Mease, Laura M. Macready and Fanny Thorpe, $100,000 in trust for Edward C. M. Kemp and $50,000 out of George Kemp's estate. The rest of the estate was to be divided between George William Kemp and Edward Kemp, Jr.

Edward Kemp made his will two weeks before his death and the two testaments claim that he was then weak by disease, bodily and mentally, and incompetent to make a will. Reuben S. Ransom, formerly a Surrogate, is chief counsel for the contestants, and Treadwell Cleveland and R. Floyd Clark for the heirs.

Dr. Daniel M. Edmonson, Edward Kemp's family physician and a witness to the will, was called as the first witness. He told of Mr. Kemp's last illness and contended that his patient was sound and strong when he drew his will.

HELD FOR ABUSING A BULL TERRIER PUP.

Dog Fancier Hurling It Against Iron Railing, and Said He Had To Because It Had Fits.

Charged with beating and otherwise abusing a little bull terrier, George Ulrich, twenty-two years old, a dog fancier, of No. 300 East Fifth street, was held in the Yorkville Court to-day in $100 for Special Sessions. The strongest witness against him was Mrs. Mary Schampagne, of No. 82 East Fifth street, who told with tears in her eyes of having seen Ulrich throw the dog many times against an iron railing in front of her house.

"I am not a member of the S. P. C. A.," he said to Magistrate Breen, "but I'm going to join right away. What a raw was awful with the poor little dog yelping in pain."

Robert J. Peterson, of No. 181 Madison avenue, also testified. Ulrich said the dog was in a fit and he was obliged to throw him about to revive him. He alleged that he has a large kennel and knows how to handle dogs.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

is more than a fat food. There is no animal fat that compares with it in nourishing and building up the wasted, emaciated body. That is why children and anæmic girls thrive and grow fat upon it. That is why persons with consumptive tendencies gain flesh and strength enough to check the progress of the disease.

NEW "BRIDGE HOG SQUAD" TO CONTINUE GOOD WORK

Police Commissioner Bingham, Pleased at Its Success, Will Make Permanent the Detail Suggested by The Evening World.

The Evening World's suggestion that the proper way to make sausage of the Brooklyn Bridge hog is to use a special detail of skilled policemen has proved so successful that the rush hour squad has been made permanent. Inspector Flood has chosen forty-four of the sturdiest men in the department to handle the crowds at both ends of the bridge. This is in addition to the regular staff of twenty-four men detailed to bridge posts, and will give a run hour force of sixty-eight men.

"From present appearances," said the inspector, "this will be a sufficient number. Commissioner Bingham told me if I needed more men I could have them. I have chosen big husky fellows, who have had experience in handling crowds."

"They will have no police duty to perform save that on the bridge in the rush hours. That is enough for any man. The success of the plan of handling the crowd with an adequate force has been so pronounced, even with men unfamiliar with the bridge and its approaches, that it seems as though a squad on duty there continuously ought to be able to entirely eradicate the bridge-rush evil."

Inspector Flood had his forty-four street men at the Eldridge Street Station to-day and instructed them in their duties. They are the pick of the force, strong and resourceful, and each of them has to his credit some action denoting presence of mind and control of temper. The men will be transferred to-morrow they will be transferred to the Fourth Precinct, to constitute the regular rush hour detail.

Ten of them, from Brooklyn, will be stationed at that end of the bridge during the rush in the morning. Thirty at the Manhattan end and four at the Brooklyn end will handle the crowds at night. Plain clothes men will mingle with the throngs looking for pinchers, pushers and other breeds of bridge hog. Fourteen of the regular force of police men detailed to the bridge for duty during the day will assist in controlling the rush at the Manhattan end and ten at the Brooklyn end.

After the men get into the swing of their jobs there ought to be no such trouble in the crush as is unavoidable because of the fervent desire of the average Brooklynite to get home after he has finished his work.

SUESINE SILK

Wears Better Than Silk

You will know as soon as you see it that Suesine Silk is a duplicate of China silk so far as appearance—but it costs less than half the price and is more enduringly good for wear because of the touch of cotton in it. All the daytime and evening shades—nothing more beautiful for gowns, dresses and waists. Samples sent upon request. Please give the name of your dealer.
